A photograph of a modern, multi-level atrium. The space is characterized by curved balconies with light-colored wood paneling and integrated recessed lighting. The ceiling is dark with several bright, circular spotlights. The overall atmosphere is clean, minimalist, and architectural.

Lahti is the most interesting center of industrial design in Finland offering a meeting place for companies, products, designers as well as training and education in design. Thanks to the close cooperation between industry and education the local companies are renowned for their skills in industrial design.
